Helping People is Fun

Mandy has a ponytail, a long face and a pair of small eyes. She has good manners and always takes care of others.

Yesterday, when Mandy was on the way to school, she saw a young girl crying loudly on the road. So, Mandy stepped forward and asked, 'What happened?'

The girl said she lost her wallet which contained the pocket money given by her mother. She was very worried about not having money to buy snacks and lunch.

Mandy comforted her, 'Don't worry. I can share my snacks with you. Now, just recall, where was the place that you last saw your wallet?'

The girl said, 'I remember it was still with me when I was on the bus this morning.' Then Mandy asked, 'What is the bus number? What time did you get off the bus?'

After collecting some information, Mandy finally helped the girl to find her wallet with the help of the bus driver. In order to thank Mandy, the girl sent a thank you card to Mandy. Mandy said, 'I am very happy that you found my wallet.'

Mandy is really a kind and capable girl. I hope I can learn from her.
