A Kind Lady

Once upon a time, there was a girl called Sophia. She had big eyes, a small nose and long straight hair. She was the prettiest girl in the country but she was never arrogant. Instead, she always helped the poor people. Although she was not rich, she shared all her things with the poor.

One day, she was walking on the street when she saw a man sleeping on the street. She said surprisingly, 'Why does he sleep on the street? He must be very cold and hungry. I must help him.' Then, she walked to him and gave him her coat. She also gave him some bread. The man looked at her with a smile. He ate the bread quickly and said thank you to her.

The next day, a soldier came and knocked at the door of Sophia's house. 'Lady, my prince wants to see you. Please come with me.' Sophia was shocked but she chose to follow the soldier. They went to a very big castle in the country. A young man came out as they arrived. He was the man who slept on the street.

The young man said, 'I am the prince of this country. I'm looking for a kind wife. You are the one I am looking for. Will you marry me?' Sophia smiled and said 'Yes, I do.'

Finally, they got married. The prince became the King of the country and Sophia became the Queen. Sophia kept helping her people who were in need. Everyone loved her very much.
