

2 youngpost Friday, September 21, 2007

happenings school news

Aplichau Kaifong Primary School

This summer, the school was the first in Hong Kong to join Harvard University's student and alumni exchange programme. Six participating students attended classes from July 16 to July 28 with Harvard graduates and undergraduates as tutors.

The classes included drama, cultural exchanges, games, Putonghua language and elementary Chinese writing sessions.

The students enjoyed activities such as watching the first half of films and writing or recreating the rest of the story.

The experience of working with English and drama helped the students develop their language skills.

On the last day of the course, the students performed a play they wrote and directed themselves.

The programme helped students to appreciate other cultures, and to communicate in English with confidence.

STUDENTS PERFORMED A PLAY THEY WROTE THEMSELVES ON THE LAST DAY OF THE EXCHANGE PROGRAMME.

3